

System Incentives & Rewards

Summary of Work

Starting in May, the System Incentives and Rewards (SIR) Implementation team met every two weeks for 2 to 2.5 hours through August. This resulted in seven team meetings. Team members were asked to complete homework (readings, review of materials, collecting ideas, etc.) to make meeting times more productive. Notes from previous meetings were always reviewed to ensure all ideas and concerns were captured.

The System Incentives and Rewards team knew from the beginning that much of the work would be dependent on other teams, creating incentives and rewards for the priorities the team identified; however, the SIR team also recognized there were larger, all-encompassing concepts and ideas the team could begin to craft.

What do YOU think?

As you review the team's concepts, please consider these questions:

- Which concept and/or idea makes you most excited? Why?
- Which concept and/or idea initiative least excites you? Why?
- If you were on the SIR team, what would be the most significant concept or idea you would want included? (This could be something we have listed or something entirely new.)
